

Section 8.1.4: Frequency of Monitoring

The frequency of monitoring will depend on the type of monitoring conducted, as well as additional factors such as the specific needs of a grantee or the complexity of the grant. GFR recommends that desk review monitoring should be conducted approximately once every six months but no less than annually. For all types of monitoring, the specific state agency monitoring plan/strategy will assist in identifying the specific frequency of monitoring based on factors such as performance indicators, reporting history, innovative promising practice potential, problems encountered during implementation, grantee's request for technical or other assistance, etc.