

Section 9.1: Automated Systems

Grant program managers have an array of automated systems available to assist with grants management and administration. In recent years, the costs for such systems have dropped considerably and the state has invested in automation that provides a cost-savings for multiple users. The following subsections will offer an overview of the available systems (noting which systems are required), the benefits of using the systems and links for more information regarding these systems.